(EN) Modality 3: Compulsory groupings, with automatic distribution

Groups: Selection of grouping of subjects.
Subgroups: Automatic assignment.

The enrollment process for compulsory groupings is as follows:

- Choose the set of subjects of the course you want to enroll and click on register.
- You will see a set of groupings in which there is a place for ALL the chosen subjects in that group.
- Choose the grouping that interests and accepts you.
- If for any reason, any subject has not been able to enroll, a dialogue window will appear. "Accept" will erase the rest of the subjects enrolled in that operation. "Cancel" will keep you enrolled in the subjects that have been possible to find a place.
- If through compulsory groupings you can register for all the subjects, your process has ended.
- If there is no grouping in which there are places for all your subjects:
  - Try to eliminate some and try to get enrolled as many as possible.
  - Contact and inform your Center of the situation. It is possible that they can offer more places and you can finish your registration.
- In compulsory groupings it is NOT possible to register for more than one group in a course.

Other considerations:

- Each time a subject is enrolled in a group through the group, there is a distribution of the students in the subgroups (classes with schedule) that have been defined for that group.
- The distribution is made following the criteria defined by the Center.
- If your Center allows it, you can change subgroup in the process of self-registration. If not, you will have other deadlines and environments to request changes.
- If you are a repeater in a subject, and your Center has arranged it, when enrolling in the suspended subject, the group chosen by you will be ignored, and you will be enrolled in a special group. The students of this group will be distributed later according to the criteria established by their Center. Therefore, in the time of self-registration, you will not know the subgroup (class) of that subject.
